

'Aboriginal embassy' now seven

THE "Aboriginal embassy" set up outside Parliament House in Canberra last week to protest at the Federal Government's land rights policy has grown to four tents and seven people.

One Aboriginal, Bill Craigie, New South Wales, said they were getting moral support from many people. They were also being encouraged by "a couple of embassies.

"I can't say which ones. They might not like me to tell," he said.